TASK I & II

SAMPLE TASK

Read the text and choose the correct option to answer questions 46-50. There are three options for each question.

It is interesting that very different people sometimes meet and become friends or husband and wife. Andy and Rose are married, but they are very, very different.

Andy is an English teacher, and he spends most of the day with the kids in class. During the week, he almost never goes out with his friends because he feels really tired after work. He just wants to rest in his free time. He likes restaurants but he doesn't like bars or sports centres. He doesn't dance or do sports. At weekends, he goes to concerts and does the shopping for the house, but he doesn't go for walks or to the gym.

Rose works in an office. She likes doing exciting things in the evenings and at weekends because her job is very boring. In most evenings, she goes to bars, or to the sports centre with her friends, but she doesn't like restaurants. At weekends, she goes for walks and to the gym. Sometimes she goes to a concert with Andy, but she doesn't go shopping at all.

46. Andy works in a/an _____.
- a) office b) restaurant c) school

TASK III & IV

SAMPLE TASK

Read the text and choose the correct option to answer questions 56-60. There are four options for each question.

I am 24 years old, and I grew up in Nishinomiya, Japan. Several years ago, I went to Negros Island in the Philippines as a 'Habitat' volunteer. This was the first of three trips I have taken to the Philippines as a volunteer. Not getting any money was not a problem for me. I think the idea of building somebody's house abroad was very exciting. The next year I returned to Negros Island as a Habitat volunteer. This time I went as a student leader with 28 classmates from Kyoto University.

Both the staff and the families on Negros Island became dear friends of the work team that I led. Meeting these people was wonderful for each of us. Their lifestyle reminded us of the meaning and value of life. The people also helped us appreciate the more valuable things in life, such as spending time with your family, friends, and neighbours; developing close relationships; helping each other; and appreciating what you have. These things are sometimes forgotten in a rich country like Japan.

We thought we came to the Philippines to help the Filipino people, but they helped us to see something valuable. They generously offered their food, space, and hearts in a way we were unaccustomed to. (Would you give up your bed for a stranger and sleep on the uncomfortable cement floor at your own house?)

When I took my third trip to the Philippines as a Habitat volunteer, I was sent to work in a house with young people from around the world. In my group, there were Americans, Indians, Koreans, Japanese and Spanish. We worked together to complete a house for a family that we met on the site. On the last day, all of us stood inside a room that we had built in just a week and had a feeling of accomplishment. Even now we keep in touch across the world. Some of us are actively involved in Habitat in different countries.

Habitat brings people together and helps us realize that people all over the world care about each other. Habitat sends the very important message that we can all be friends. Being involved with Habitat for Humanity has changed my life. I have learned that I can make a difference in the world.

56. The text is about a person who _____.

- a) moves to another country
- b) gives money to poor people
- c) builds some people's houses
- d) makes money abroad

TASK V-VI

SAMPLE TASK

Read the text and choose the correct option to answer questions 66-70. There are four options for each question.

If you have ever been shopping and thought you were getting a bargain simply because the price appeared in red, or have left a shop because the sales assistant talked too much, you're not alone. In fact, your actions are quite typical, according to experts on customer behaviour. When it comes to shopping, experts explain that women think about everything much more carefully than men. A recent study showed that when men saw an advertisement with the prices written in red, they believed the shop was offering greater price savings than those printed in black. They felt very positive about buying the product as well. In contrast, red didn't have the same effect on female shoppers. It actually made them suspicious. Experts explain that if women see an ad in red, they question what's happening and think they have to be extra careful. 'Am I being tricked?' they will ask themselves. Women also seem to have a much better memory than men when it comes to the prices in advertisements. This could be because men don't think so hard about adverts or because they just aren't that interested. In a separate study, it was found that customers seem to prefer sales people who can correctly read moods. This is news for managers who believe that sales will increase if shop assistants are always happy and friendly to customers. Researchers believe that the findings suggest that customers don't always want sales staff to be extremely happy and chatty. Instead, we prefer staff who understand body language. The key to a successful sale, then, is reading the customer's mood and matching that mood. The experts explain that it isn't advisable to match the mood of a customer who's angry; a customer who is in a hurry or in a bad mood would rather deal with a sales person who understands them, can serve them quickly or just leave them alone – and not try to get them to chat about their family. There are of course some factors which are outside the control of shop owners – like the weather, which can really change people's moods. Experts are confident that good weather means good news for shop owners. As much as 60–80% of customer decisions are made while people are actually in a shop, rather than before or after their visit. And as more people are out during nice weather, there is a higher chance they are shopping and therefore more opportunity for shops to make a sale. Rain and snow have the opposite effect, as people prefer to stay at home.

66. According to one study, when men saw a price written in red, they _____.

- a) were not sure about the quality of the product
- b) thought the product was designed for men
- c) thought the product was on special offer
- d) were not willing to buy the product

IMPORTANT REMINDERS

- Students are required to have ID cards (ID card, driving licence, passport, etc.) to be able to take the exam. Without an ID card with a photograph on, it will not be possible for students to take the exam.
- Students are responsible for following the announcements about the exam venue, time, and rules.
- Students are required to check their classes on the YDYO website before the exam and they must be ready in their classes 10 minutes before the start of the exam.
- Students are required to bring their own pencils and erasers to the exam. No sharing of these items will be allowed.
- Students can take the exam if they are in the exam venue in the first 15 minutes, but no additional time will be given to these latecomers.
